MMA Offshore awarded 2016 Supplier Recognition Award by ConocoPhillips

In December 2015, MMA was awarded a five year Platform Supply Vessel (“PSV”) contract by ConocoPhillips. The MMA Inscription was contracted to provide both platform supply and static tow services in support of ConocoPhillips’ Bayu-Undan facilities located in the Timor Sea, 500km north-west of Darwin and 250km south of East Timor. MMA undertook a significant modification project to prepare the PSV for the dual purpose scope.

On 17 April 2017, ConocoPhillips announced the winners of its 2016 Supplier Recognition Award program. Nominations were collected by ConocoPhillips’ business units around the world, with winners chosen by a global committee, including senior management. The eight recipient companies, of which MMA Offshore was one, were honoured for exhibiting exceptional leadership that celebrates ConocoPhillips’ company values. Awards were given in two areas: ‘Focus on Execution’ and ‘Doing Business Better’.

MMA was recognised for ‘Doing Business Better’. ConocoPhillips acknowledged the collaborative effort MMA led in developing a dual-purpose PSV. To ensure the dual-function would be successful, MMA also developed a sustainable officer training schedule and new ship handling techniques. In addition to achieving significant cost savings, this effort led to fewer vessels in the field and a reduction of five million litres of fuel consumption.

ConocoPhillips' Executive Vice President of Production, Drilling and Projects, Al Hirshberg said the awards were a great opportunity to recognise the importance of key suppliers and their commitment to innovation.

"2016 was another difficult year for the industry, and the strength of this year's nominations highlights the invaluable role suppliers play in helping us safely deliver on our goals despite a challenging cost environment."

"These suppliers demonstrated differential performance by being flexible and adaptable or helping us improve the way we do business by developing fit-for-purpose solutions. This program is a great opportunity to recognise their commitment and innovation," said Mr Hirshberg.

MMA Offshore's Managing Director Jeff Weber commented that the challenge to demonstrate reliability and innovation as a service provider in today's oil and gas industry is the key to success.

"Recently we made the decision to strategically reposition our business, moving from a diversified service offering to focusing primarily on offshore vessel operations. To differentiate ourselves in this market, we know the challenge is to deliver safe, innovative and cost-effective offshore vessel solutions."

"We are extremely pleased to receive an award from ConocoPhillips for Doing Business Better. For us this award is recognition we have the expertise to collaborate with our clients and deliver truly tailored marine solutions – an ability that will continue to set us apart in the industry. We would like to thank the ConocoPhillips team members who contributed to the technical solution that was implemented.
